Governor Fleming's Junugural. Governor Fleming in his inaugural bad taste in reiterating the old campaign cry that the Republicans had "boodlerized" the State and perpetrated frauds at the polls in the elections of 1888. These slanders were all exploded in the recent investigation, together with the nightmare of Governor Wilson, in which he saw car loads of colored voters coming into the State. In repeating these wild assertions and giving them his endorsement at this time, Governor Fleming nullifles the high sounding professions of peace with which he sugared his opening sentences. But having been under the influence of the Democratic managers it is no wonder that he has been compelled to chloro form his conscience to set the seal of his approbation on all that has been done in the name of Democracy.

The case is that of the State vs. Williams and the decision is upon the most and Mercury, and ischarge after having been sentenced to the penitentiary.

Williams had been indicted, convicted and sentenced to pay a fine of $75, or be confined in the State penitentiary, at hard labor, for a period of four months, by the Circuit Court for Laurens county for a breach of civil contract entered into by him and one Charles Workman, for the year 1889. By the terms of the contract defendant was to work for the prosecutor twenty-six days in each month during the year for the sum of $95. The time of the payment was not specified. Before the trial the defendant and demurred to the indictment, on the ground that the act of the Legislature under which the indictment was brought, is repugnant to the Constitution of the State. Here then, was a story where truth evidently left fiction in the shade.
It was about ten years ago that a poor woman living on Pine street went into Mr. Billey's office.
"My poor daughter is dead," said she, "and I want you to bury her."
Within half an hour Mr. Billey was there. Upon the cot lay the body of the dead girl. She was apparently about 10 years of age. Her eyes had been closed by the hand of affection and upon het face was the settled composure of death. Half a dozen neighboring women were sitting around the room crying. As tenderly as possible Mr. Billey directed the necessary work and placing his hand under the shoulder of the corposure to assist derly as possible Mr. Billey directed the necessary work and placing his hand under the shoulder of the corpse to assist in moving it thought he detected some sign of animation. "Bring in that hot water at once," he said.

It was brought in, a backage of mustard was broken into it and the woman began a vigorous rubbing of the girl's limbs. At last her skin began to show responsive action, the lips moved and the cyclids began to twitch. In a little while animation was fully restored, but the girl could not speak a word until next day. Then she said to Mr. Billey:

"I knew all that was going on, but could neither move nor speak a word. I heard them say I was dead. I saw mother weeping over me, and heard them talking about where and when I should be buried. Oh, the horror of my situation I cannot describe. The time seemed like eternity; I tried to move; my heart came up into my mouth, but not a move could I make—not a word could I speak. I saw mother when she described weeps.
